USE OF FUEL OIL CUTS DOWN USE OF COAL

The use of oil as locomotive fuel has decreased the amount of coal mined for domestic use, for which lump coal is demanded. Only a small part of the coal mined is coarse enough for this purpose and the remainder must be used for engine coal or for coking. As comparatively few manufacturing plants derive their fuel supply from this field, the railroads are the chief consumers of engine coal mined in coal districts so that competition of the fuel oil restricts the demand for engine coal on the railroads and at the same time curtails the production of domestic coal. During the last five months of the year the orders for lump coal for domestic purposes far exceeded the capacity of the mines, for the mine operators could not dispose of the engine coal and could not afford to mine the domestic coal and store or waste the coal of the smaller sizes.

COYOTE BEATS VITALITY RECORD

Eugene Segale had an adventure on his Carson river ranch last Friday that outclasses the vaunted vitality of the feline species by several laps. Mr. Segale shot a coyote, crippling it and beat it with his gunstock over the skull until it was apparently dead. He then tried it up to a tree branch and began skinning it. When the hide was about half stripped from the carcass the supposed defunct coyote suddenly bit Segale in two places on the hand and gave vent to a staccato wall that caused Segale to drop his knife and retreat in dismay. Returning he seized his knife again and slashed the animal's jugular from which the blood spouted in a stream, the coyote snapping viciously until dead. Anyone doubting the truth of this story can be convinced of its veracity by Mr. Segale, who secured the coyote's hide as a trophy and bears the marks of its teeth on his hand as a souvenir of his unique adventure.

ELKO HAS A WORKING CHAMBER OF COMMERCE

COMPLETE CONTRACT FOR OPENING OF JARBIDGE ROAD.

On Saturday W. E. Johnson of North Fork contracted with the chamber of commerce to open the road through to the Jarbidge and extend from Gold Creek to the Jarbidge, the line of stages that he at present runs from Oldham station to Gold Creek.

Yesterday at noon Mr. Johnson started from Elko. He will make the trip over the route and where there is danger of late snows or the drifting of snow he will stake the road. As soon as he returns the timbers for the Bruneau bridge will be sent north. This is the only bridge needed to make the bridge a success.

Later the road will be completed into the camp. This will require the construction of less than three miles of road. This is no great engineering feat as the road can be built almost without the use of powder.

Are you going into Jarbidge? Then ride with Johnson and save packing from 9 to 20 miles. He will carry you within three miles of the camp with an easy pack from the end of the stage line into the camp. Write to him at North Fork and make your reservations for a good seat.—Elko Independent.

EVANGELIST BULGIN STILL "STARTING THINGS."

Evangelist Bulgin, known in this city, and who, since leaving here has had several varied experiences, from being shot at to being accused of all kinds of shady deals, is holding services in Oklahoma at the present time. As usual with Bulgin he has charged the officials with all kinds of crimes, such as taking hush money, protecting gamblers, etc., and as a result got a grand jury investigation. Saturday he informed his congregation that at least 300 indictments would be returned and when the court heard of his talk the grand jury was ordered to report this morning at which time it is expected it will be discharged.

Bulgin got himself on the inside of the doings of the inquisitorial body and as a result defeated what he is pleased to term "the ends of justice" by his butt-in methods. Bulgin is the "preacher" who started the anti-gambling movement in Reno and also tried to start something in this city.—Carson Appeal.

SHOULD BE GIVEN THE FULL PENALTY

One of the mail delivery clerks of the postoffice in this city lost the contents of a package yesterday while on his route and is in a peck of trouble. The package in which the lost goods were wrapped became unfastened and fell from his bag. Anyone finding the same would be conferring a favor upon the clerk and also to the postal department by returning the same to the postoffice as soon as possible.—Carson News.
